Dear Student,

You will require a number of set texts over the course of your two years studying English Literature. These texts can be easily sourced online or in store and are listed below. There are no recommended editions, however, they must not be abridged. Those marked open can be taken into the exam, however, this must be without annotation or published notes on the text. If you do wish to annotate your text, we can provide clean copies of the texts on the day of exams.

Death of a Salesman, Arthur Miller
Othello, William Shakespeare
Hard Times, Charles Dickens (open)
The Kite Runner, Khaled Hosseini (open)

Most pressing, we will need students to have copies of Death of a Salesman by Arthur Miller and Othello by William Shakespeare before 6th October 2023.

The English Department feels passionately about our students having access to necessary resources, and therefore would ask any student who is unable to provide their own text to speak to either myself or their class teacher so that we can arrange to issue a pack of books on loan. We would appreciate your support in handling loaned texts with care and returning them at the end of the course. We hope you enjoy your studies and wish you much success.

Yours faithfully,

Miss C Hogan
Second in English and KS5 Lead
